

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Item Name: Proposed Revision to ABOR Policy 2-102, "Undergraduate Admissions" (Second Reading)

Action Item Discussion Item Information Item

Issue: The Board is asked to approve the proposed revision to ABOR Policy 2-102, "Undergraduate Admissions," on the criteria for assured and delegated admission for Arizona resident transfer students.

Background

- ABOR Board Policy 2-102 provides the admission criteria for undergraduate students.
- Arizona undergraduate applicants who meet certain academic criteria are assured admission into the universities. Applicants who do not meet those criteria or who are non-residents may be considered for admission under delegated admission, the section of the policy which gives the universities discretion in selecting those students most likely to be successful.
- Specific requirements for freshmen and transfer students are also defined under assured and delegated admission criteria.
- A recent analysis of the success of Arizona transfer students suggests that the Board policy for assured admission is not optimal for the success of many transfer students at the universities.
- As a result, a proposal to redefine assured admission for Arizona transfer students is proposed.

Strategic Implications

- The Board of Regents, along with other organizations and entities within the state, are pursuing initiatives to increase the number of baccalaureate degrees produced in Arizona in order to be competitive nationally in education attainment and to insure our economic viability.
- Likewise, fiscal efficiency and productivity, while always a concern in the state, are even more critical under what is expected to be an extended period of budget constraint.
- By creating policies that support the success of students who enter our universities more students are expected to succeed in meeting their educational goals.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Discussion

- The primary goal of this change is to set high standards for transfer students as well as to improve the success rate for transfer students who enter the universities.
- A recent study of Arizona community college students who transfer to the universities identified a significant difference in student success based on prior academic experiences.
- While some of this information is consistent with frequent findings from studies of transfer students (students with higher GPAs and more transfer credits are more successful than students with lower GPAs and fewer credits), this is the most comprehensive review of Arizona students under our existing transfer system.
- The proposed policy change would limit assured admission to the resident transfer students who either completed the Arizona General Education Curriculum (AGEC) and have a 2.5 cumulative GPA or an associate degree and have a 2.0 GPA. Students may also qualify for assured admission based on high school performance (top 25% of the graduating class and successful completion of all 16 core competencies).
- Other resident students and all non-residents will be eligible for admission under the delegated admission criteria within certain parameters.
- Correction to the policy from the First Reading in June. Students who complete the AGEC with at least a 2.0 GPA were to be identified as eligible for delegated admission; this statement was omitted from the policy write-up in the June item, but has been included in the revision for this reading (Refer to Section B.1.b).
- This proposal was reviewed by the Academic Affairs Committee on April 13, 2009. While the committee expressed support for the proposal, the Committee asked that it be well vetted with the community colleges before the Committee made a formal recommendation to the Board.
- In April, the proposal was presented to Arizona Academic Programs Articulation Steering Committee (APASC), the statewide transfer articulation operations group comprised of university academic administrators and community college chief academic officers, for comment. On May 1, 2009, APASC gave its unanimous endorsement of the policy change. Several community college presidents have also expressed support for the change.
- The proposal was also reviewed by a community college-university task force on admissions and records who made some minor recommendations to the language, which has been incorporated.

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

- This policy change would become effective for Fall 2010 admissions.

Committee Review and Recommendation

- The Academic Affairs Committee reviewed this proposal at its meeting on June 3, 2009, and recommended approval.
- The Board reviewed these revisions on a first reading at its June 18-19, 2009 meeting.

Recommendation

The Board is asked to approve the proposed changes to ABOR Policy 2-102, "Undergraduate Admissions," as presented in this Executive Summary.
