Q: What does Prop. 308 do?

A: Prop. 308 made two significant changes to Arizona law. First, with the passage of Prop. 308, a qualifying non-citizen student, with statutorily defined exceptions¹, is eligible for in-state resident tuition at state universities and community colleges if the student both:

1. Attended an Arizona public or private high school, or homeschool for a minimum of two years; and

FINANCIAL AID FAQs

Q: How does Prop. 308 impact eligibility for financial aid?

A: Prop. 308 repealed an Arizona law (A.R.S. § 15-1825) which prohibited students who were not citizens of the United States and who were “without lawful immigration status” from receiving financial assistance subsidized or paid in whole, or in part, with state monies, such as tuition waivers, fee waivers, grants, scholarships, and any other type of financial aid or assistance.

With the passage of Prop. 308, all students – regardless of immigration status – may be eligible to receive financial aid paid in whole or in part with state monies to attend an Arizona public university or an Arizona community college. While Prop. 308 eliminated barriers to eligibility for financial aid based on immigration status, a student must still meet all other requirements of the state financial aid they are seeking.

To be eligible for state financial aid, a student does NOT need to meet the Arizona high school attendance or graduation criteria. That applies only to eligibility for in-state tuition.

Prop. 308 does not impact the eligibility requirements to receive federal financial aid.

Q: When the law takes effect, are students who are eligible for in-state tuition under Prop. 308 also eligible for the Arizona Promise Program?

A: No. To qualify for the Arizona Promise Program, a student must meet all the eligibility requirements under A.R.S. § 15-1701. One requirement of the Promise Program is that a student must qualify for a Pell Grant, which is federal need-based financial aid. Aliens without legal immigration status, who are not citizens or legal permanent residents, do not qualify for federal financial aid. More information about the Arizona Promise Program, including eligibility requirements, is available at: azregents.edu/arizona-promise-program.

Students impacted by Prop. 308 may be eligible for other state or college financial aid, in addition to private scholarships.

Q: What other scholarships are the students impacted by Prop. 308 now eligible to apply for?

A: Arizona’s public universities offer a number of financial aid opportunities, including merit scholarships and need-based aid. Students who meet the requirements of the public universities’ scholarships and financial aid programs are now eligible to receive them, regardless of immigration status. For additional information, students should visit the university financial aid websites or contact university financial aid offices.

Q: Should the students, who are impacted by Prop. 308, complete the FAFSA application?

A: Any student who wants to apply for financial aid and who can complete the FAFSA, should complete the FAFSA. However, a student must have a Social Security Number (SSN) to complete a FAFSA application, and some of the students impacted by Prop. 308 may not be eligible to complete the FAFSA. Students can visit ssa.gov/pubs/EN-05-10009.pdf for more information on how to obtain an SSN.

Q: What should I do about my personal questions about financial aid?

A: Please contact the financial aid office at your university about your eligibility for financial aid.
